Dining deck spilling out from the main house.

Rear view overlooking herb garden.

Gravel driveway leading up to porte cochere held up by two solid logs.

Water tower with viewing gallery at the top.

'Durian deck' - in anticipation of a good crop!

Dining table used when entertaining guests. The wood and crystal chandelier was custom designed and handmade.

Living area - notice the Rumah Melayu windows and adjustable timber louvred panels on the external wall. Most of the old timber furniture are from Malacca.

Old teak framed glass windows from Malacca reused at the entrance lobby.

The breezy master bedroom.

Floor tiles in the guest bathroom are reused from an old Malaccan house. Leaves from the adjacent bathroom peep over the shower.

When the weather gets too hot, into the pool we jump! The courtyard design allows for air to be cooled before flowing into and cooling the other living spaces.

The island in the kitchen allows for long brunches on lazy weekends.
